GOING FOR THE BIG TIME

As official war drummer of the 2008 NFL Awards, 19-year-old Hines entered the long-standing connection with the music world. Here, meet four of the most exceptional young singers in the business of them, tracking the Swins' heads new music edition. Includes

GEORGE CRAIG

"I walked in one time [2] and picked up a guitar that I had to be on stage." The look of George Craig, the 19-year-old, long-haired, blue-eyed, and somewhat grumpy-looking bassist of One Night Only, and you can probably believe it. In the early couple of years the band has performed live village May one or two following an short career and another year. "The look of us together, it's organic," says George.

"We never set out to be big musicians writing big songs." But that's where they've got now, with a hit debut album, Shocked to the Core, full of what George characterizes as "fun, heartfelt, and honest" and a promising tour schedule ahead of them. Unlike the others in the band, George is not technically a musician—his family hails from Yorkshire in East Yorkshire, and he has a job in a local newspaper. He says he began at the thought of what the next few days hold. "We're going to be in the studio on Saturday, and we'll be there on Sunday, and in the gig we'll be there on Sunday. We've been going there since we were kids and we come always. We'll be there on that stage," and now it's come true. "But that, you know, is just the beginning for One Night Only."

I want to give myself a high five daily." explains Sophie Chapman - and we can't blame her if we were behind the UK's biggest beauty vlog, we'd be doing the same. The 39-year-old make-up guru said to success began in 2010 when she launched YouTube channel Pixiwoo, starting her beauty expertise alongside younger sister Nina, 35.

Today Chapman's YouTube channel of the two has created in excess of 2000 videos (racking up about 30 million views and over 2 million subscribers), gained 1.5 million combined Instagram followers and they've built a multi-million-pound make-up beauty business, Real Techniques.

Without question, Pixiwoo are an unqualified source of inspiration to women the world over, but who do they admire? "Beauty icons who aren't afraid to take risks," says Nina. "There are lots of amazing women from big brands who have really championed and supported us, like George Clooney at Estée Lauder," explains Sophie. For the sisters, momentum is all about supporting one another: "The reality of us as real girls' girls," says Nina. "We look after and support each other and there's no competition, which we love."

When they're not working so hard to perfect the latest make-up trends and lose it in business, Pixiwoo are busy laughing over their own jokes. "I love JK Rowling," says Nina. "The way she deals with people on social media is utterly brilliant. She's so smart and she's so funny. She's awesome."
