

Mews House kensington

A unique, warm, light and bright mews house hidden on a quiet cobbled mews street in Kensington. The mews house has a large open plan reception room laid out over the entire ground floor with generous ceiling heights. The mews house has attractive features on the front elevation including, a mature rose climber, a large original garage double door which can open fully c2.5m wide and is the front door to the property. The mews house also contains a bright c6m ceiling height library area filled with a colourful great collection of books, the library also has fabulous internal lights which would make a great backdrop for an evening shoot. The house generally contains a wealth of modern art, photography and antique mirrors acquired by the owner over many years. The house also contains a light filled south facing roof terrace, and 6 further rooms not described above which cover bedrooms, bathrooms, a snug and light filled dressing room which opens up onto a double height area above the library. This three-bedroom house is warm and welcoming, with a soft colour palette that sparks brilliance in the vast, open plan reception / kitchen laid out over the entire ground floor. Adding to the sense of openness, light and volume, a delicate open-riser staircase leads up to a mezzanine atrium overlooking the living area. With additional entertaining space on the south-facing roof terrace. Consists of: Open-plan reception / dining room Modern kitchen Master bedroom with en suite Two further bedrooms Two further bathrooms Office space / fourth bedroom Roof terrace Found in the Royal Borough of Kensington & Chelsea

